

Schneider National Expands Associate Healthcare Resources with Best Doctors

New Benefit Helps Associates Get Free Expert Advice When Faced with Uncertainty about Their Medical Care

Boston – June 25, 2009 – Best Doctors, Inc., an expert medical consultation service that empowers employees to take an active role in their medical decisions, today announced that Schneider National, Inc., the nation’s largest truckload carrier, has made the Best Doctors’ benefit available to its associates and their dependents. Through Best Doctors, Schneider National associates and their dependents now have access to advanced medical expertise when they are uncertain about their diagnosis or treatment.

The federal government’s National Ambulatory Care Medical Survey found that more than 150 million doctor office visits featured less than 10 minutes of face-to-face contact. As physicians are afforded less time with their patients, as many as one in five U.S. patients are treated based on an incorrect diagnosis.

The Best Doctors benefit will allow approximately 13,000 eligible Schneider National associates and dependents to have their medical cases evaluated by world-renowned expert physicians who will conduct a thorough analysis of a member’s case based on all their medical records, full history and tests. After the review, the Schneider associate receives a comprehensive, easy-to-understand report summarizing the expert’s findings that can be used with their treating physician to take the right next steps.

“It’s natural to feel trepidation when faced with a difficult diagnosis or when choosing among several treatment options. Best Doctors offers our associates peace of mind, and provides them help in navigating complex healthcare decisions,” said Angela Fish, director of benefits at Schneider National. “We are committed to providing our associates with resources that bring confidence and expertise at a time when they need it most.”

In addition, Best Doctors helps companies and organizations reduce healthcare costs by arming its members with information that will get them on the right clinical path without wasting time, energy and money pursuing inappropriate treatments. A Best Doctors analysis of clinical cases warranting review by their experts uncovered alarming medical oversight including:

- Wrong treatments occurred 61 percent of the time
- Insufficient work-ups reported in 31 percent of cases
- Treatment efficacy shortfalls in 25 percent of cases
- Misinterpretation of pathology or diagnostic tests occurred in 12 percent of cases

“In this time of reform in health care, we know that one thing is a constant: that when you or a loved one are sick, it can be very hard to figure out the right thing to do,” said Evan Falchuk, President of Best Doctors. “Best Doctors helps members make the right decisions about their care, improving the quality of the care they receive, and the cost paid by their employer. We look forward to doing our best to help Schneider National employees get the best care.”
